Bill to Reconvene American Delegates to International Conference Favored. Washington, Jan. 18 .- The House Comnittee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries mittee on Merchant Marine and Fisherles to-day ordered a favorable report on the bill of Mr. Payne, of New York, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to reconvene the American delegates to the International Marine Conference.

Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain, in advocating the bill, said such a meeting would prove desirable during the early spring or summer because the various nutions had not adopted the recommendations of the conference, and Germany contemplated changes in the proposed rules. Other nations would likely do the same. The American delegates should convene, if necessary, and examine any changes proposed.

Mr. Chamberlain also supported the bill necesary, and examine any changes proposed.

Mr. Chamberlain also supported the bill amending the laws, so as to repeal the reciprocity clause of June, 1884, concerning the tonnage tax. This law, he said, had operated against the Southampton lines and in favor of the Hamburg lines. Justice to the American lines demanded the repeal of this law. If it were repealed it would add about $100,000 annually to the support of our marine hospitals.

The bill also reduces to two cents per ton the tax on vessels engaged in coastwise trade. It was taken under consideration, as was also a resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to send to the House the report of Professor Elliott, of the Smithsonian Institution, on the seal fisheries. Mr. Chamberlain favored the resolution.

informed Jacob Whittemore, deputy collector for New Hampshire, that "green" Chinamen were brought through this State from Canada by a "grapevine" route. Deputy Whittemore went to Lancaster, three weeks ago, and watched for contrabands coming from the Queen's dominion via the Quebec Railway. He was told by the railroad hands that suspects had been seen on the cars. The deputy lay in wait, and the next day boarded a train and took into custody four gorgeously arrayed Celestials, who had tlokets from Montreal to Boston.

lestials, who had tlekets from Montreal to Boston.

The Chinese were taken to Manchester to be tried before they were formally deported. To the surprise of the Court they showed certificates of merchants who had lived in Boston for years. They were, of course, discharged. The next day sixteen Chinamen came down over the railroad from Montreal to this city. Here they were met by two others, who acted as chaperones. Ten of the party continued to Boston and the others departed, via Worcester, for New York.

WILY WAYS OF CELESTIALS.
How They Work the "Grapevine" Route and Outwit the Revenue Officials.
Nashua, N. H., Jan. 18.—Belleving that the law preventing Chinese from coming into the United States, except as tourists or merchants, was being systematically evaded, the revenue authorities at Boston and the others departed, via Worcester, for New York.
The act has been repeated every day since, and Chinamen are transported through in varying numbers. The officials admit that the four arrested were decoys, who had certificates and allowed themselves to be arrested, in order to throw the revenue men off their guard. The latter claim that the machinery of the law is in adequate to prevent this wholesale immigration, as Chinamen look so much alike that certificates may be exchanged and used repeatedly.
